“ I first met Mr. Blasius at Jamie’s wedding, and from that first encounter I could see that he was a loving and present father as well as a doting grandfather. Over the years, he was always present for special events, holidays, and sometimes for no special occasion at all except to visit. The fact that he made the effort to fly to Florida at least once a year over the 12 years that Jamie and I have been friends speaks volumes as to the caring and selfless man that he was. I am thankful for my encounters with him. I am happy to know how fiercely he loved his family, and I pray for peace for the whole family as I know his absence leaves a vast hole that cannot be filled.

Love and prayers,
